

Crowds Besiege Charlie Chaplin In London Hotel

Pursued on Foot and by Taxi,
Can't Read His Mail, Finds
Only Refuge in Sleep.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—"I feel like the Pied Piper of Hamelin," said Charlie Chaplin at noon today, when he took refuge in his suite from the admiring hundreds who had followed him about all morning. The popularity of the film comedian continues unabated.

Never in the most fantastically exaggerated of his movie "mob scenes" has Charlie collected such curious crowds as those which dogged his footsteps wherever he went today.

Chaplin is having the greatest difficulty in taking a walk. Accompanied by one of his secretaries, he got ten feet from the door of his hotel before some one recognized him and Londoners in the immediate vicinity dropped whatever they were doing to crowd around, and many to follow him down Piccadilly. Although the majority of his admirers kept at a "religious distance," Charlie, soon found walking impracticable and signalled a taxi. It is a matter of record that six other taxis were instantly hailed and their drivers ordered to follow Charlie's.

The comedian drove to Hyde Park and tried to get in a little exercise, but he was almost instantly recognized, and the hue and cry of his admirers was on once more. Fashionable Londoners, out for their morning promenades, joined with children and butchers' boys in tagging after him.

A stalwart bodyguard to protect him from the thousands of well-wishers was considered by Chaplin today.

WOMAN KILLED BY TROLLEY CAR
Mrs. Rosa Trussolna, forty-seven, of No. 56 Stanton Street, was instantly killed by an eastbound West End Line trolley car as she was crossing the tracks at Bay 49th Street, about half a mile from Coney Island, last night.

Buyways

McCreery patrons never have to wait the usual length of time to receive the benefit of a wholesale price reduction. They receive the benefit of it immediately—long before the public generally, feels it.

This is due entirely to our progressive merchandising method, which is known as a "quick turnover" policy. Everything in our store, when it arrives, is marked at a price that assures its immediate sale, so we are every day in a position to buy more. Thus we can take instant advantage of a lowered wholesale price and transfer the advantage without a day's delay to our patrons.
